Who am I?	Why am I here?	What impact have I had in the last 12 months?
I am an architect by profession, having previously run a large, multi-national architectural firm, until I became a full time dad to my son, who attends the school. I am also a councillor at Charnwood Borough Council and Leicestershire County Council, and vice-chair of the board of governors at Loughborough College.	I enjoyed helping out at the playgroup when my son was young, joined the committee there, then when he started at the school, put my name forward when a vacancy came up on the governors committee. I still enjoy helping at the school, and for four years came in most weeks for a couple of hours to listen to readers. It's interesting to combine the volunteering bit with the strategic planning required by being a governor - you get to see both sides of decisions. It's also important as a parent, to separate what's good for your own child, with what's good for the school and its future when you make decisions as a governor.	I believe that decisions that result from clear, focussed debate, based on facts, makes a better school for everyone - and I believe that all of us on the governing body contribute equally towards that. I hope that I also bring experiences from other governing bodies, and elsewhere, that help to inform debate and shape outcomes.
